

JD Crowley
Ratanakiri
Cambodia

May 1, 2013

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

As the EMU team leader in Cambodia, I speak for the entire team in enthusiastically recommending Josh and Amy Jensen for mission work in Cambodia.

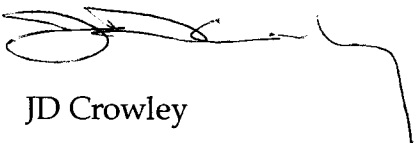

Most importantly, Josh and Amy have been faithful members of their local church, teaching Sunday school classes, overseeing the Sunday school program, leading congregational worship, and using their musical gifts in service of the church. In his role on the leadership team for three years, Josh has experienced the joys and difficulties of overseeing God's flock. As their time in Texas comes to an end, they will soon transfer their involvement back to Josh's childhood church, Hampton Park Baptist Church. No one doubts that Hampton Park will soon place their official approval on Josh and Amy to be sent out as missionaries under their spiritual care.

In addition to the preparation that comes from serious church membership, both Josh and Amy have been committed to the pursuit of educational training crucial to their ministry here—Josh through his Masters in Bible Translation and Doctorate in Linguistics, and Amy through her Doctorate in Education. Josh's doctoral work was in the very language of the tribe with whom they hope to work.

I could also mention Josh and Amy's theological depth, their strong teaching gifts, their close affinity with the team members who are already in country, and Josh's experience in living in NE Cambodia. Suffice it to say that the Crowleys, Kanes, and Farmers cannot wait for the day when we will work side-by-side with the Jensens.

I hope you will consider speeding the coming of that day.

Grateful,

JD Crowley